

Week 6 Handouts — Stakeholder Alignment & Negotiation

Participant-facing handouts for Week 6. Each is a standalone grid, template, card pack, or rubric — distribute (print or share) before the day and activity that uses it. Role-play cards have a Public surface everyone may read and a Hidden section only the roleplayer sees; keep the Hidden sections out of the other quad's hands.

Handout	Day · Activity	What it is power-interest-grid	Day 1 · A1	2x2 Power x Interest grid + quadrant engagement styles + worked example raci-matrix-template	Day 1 · A2	R/A/C/I definitions + 5-decision matrix template + 4 checks engagement-style-table	Day 2	Four engagement principles + cadence/format/length by quadrant engagement-plan-template	Day 2 · A2	Per-stakeholder engagement-plan block + asks categories + anti-patterns engagement-triage-pack	Day 2 · A1	8 stakeholder profile cards (Public + Hidden); 2 are traps translation-drill-pack	Day 3 · A1	6 technical statements paired to a stakeholder + worksheet trade-off-brief-template	Day 3 · A2	One-page trade-off brief template + translation table + worked example objection-map-template	Day 4	Per-objection template (response / pivot / line held) + non-negotiables opening-template	Day 4	60-second 4-part opening + worked example + rehearsal checklist surprise-objection-set	Day 5 · Round 1	2 surprise objections each for Architect / Security / Eng Director scope-creep-ask-cards	Day 5 · Round 2	3 scope-creep asks with hidden real-driver + fallback executive-demand-scenario-cards	Day 5 · Round 3	3 executive demands with hidden settle points negotiation-rubric	Day 5	6-dimension scoring rubric + round structure + trade-space concept

Handout	Day · Activity	What it is
negotiation-score-sheet	Day 5	Printable weighted score sheet + quick-tally version outcomes-log-template	Day 5	SEP Section 5 per-round outcomes-log block + three-round overview

Design principle: these are working surfaces, not narration.
 Role-play cards keep their real driver / settle point in the Hidden section — the author has to surface it through good questions.